A NEW VICTOR RECORD OF
The Star Spangled Banner

BY JOHN MCCORMACK
The day has come when the Star Spangled Banner takes on a new significance in the eyes of a war-torn world. It is the flag of the United States alone but of all humanity, which is unfurled in order that human rights shall be set firmly and irrevocably above all other rights.

First Blood: For first blood in the 1917 fishing season, a ten pound catfish is pretty fair luck. Such a fish was caught by A. Nott of 360 N. First street recently. The fish was caught on light casting tackle in the river above the dam and was pulled in only after a half hour of violent struggle on the part of Mr. Nott and Mr. Fish. The prize is on display in Hinterland's window on West Milwaukee street.

MACHINERY IN ORDER FOR REGISTRATION

ELECTION OFFICIALS WILL BE USED AS FAR AS POSSIBLE TO SIGN UP MEN BE-TWEEN 21 AND 31.

USE POLLING PLACES

Registrar and Four Assistants Will Have Charge of Each Precinct on June 5th—County Clerk
Lee Gets Details.

Machinery for the registering of every male resident of Wisconsin between the ages of 21 and 31 inclusive, on Tuesday, June 5, the date designated by the selective law, is being set in order and all details will be fully worked out within the next few days.
County Clerk H. W. Lee and Simon
Smith, secretary and president respectively of the Rock county board of defense, attended the meeting of representatives of the defense boards of the various counties of the state at Madison on Tuesday, and in addition to other matters relative to the defense program received information with regard to the method of registration for the selective draft.
The details of the plan have been worked out by the governor after sending a committee of the state defense board to the various counties to straighten out several misunderstandings, and the method will be uniform throughout the country. The polling places of each election precinct will be the places of registration. For the most part the election officials will serve, except that certain changes will be made in order to secure men who can write a plain, legible hand of prime importance in order to have the record as free from errors as possible.

As far as the registration boards of the cities of Beloit and Janesville are concerned, they will be in charge of the city officials, who will make any changes they deem necessary. In the towns and villages, the town board and members of the town board will act, except in instances where it may be advisable to make changes. All men are expected to serve without pay, although if any decline to do so, and members of the town board respective towns, cities and villages for reimbursement. It is the aim of the government to make the whole business a matter of patriotic duty.
One person in each registration place will be designated the registrar, through whose hands every registration blank must pass and who must sign each blank and be responsible for the returns to the county clerk, who in turn sends in the registration blanks to the governor. The manner of appointing the registrars will be determined later. The war department has instructed the sheriffs to appoint the registrars, and all blanks and information regarding registration have been delivered to the sheriffs, but since the sheriff is not in close touch with the election machinery which it is proposed to use, it is probable that the city clerk and in the case of the cities the mayors will name the registrars. The sheriffs have already been ordered to turn over blanks and supplies to the county clerks.
County Clerk Lee proposes to call a meeting of the various election inspectors on Friday, June 1st, at the court house, at which time the whole registration matter will be carefully gone over.

"Wisconsin is anxious to do up this matter of registering for the draft carefully and accurately," said Lee. "The slogan will be 'Not a man in Wisconsin who will be taken for failure to register.' This will mean that residents must thoroughly understand the importance of appearing at the registration places on June 5th and answering the questions presented. Every male person who has passed his twenty-first birthday and has not yet reached his 31st birthday, must register. This applies to men in the guard as well as to other persons. It applies to prisoners in jail, and aliens as well as citizens. The hours for the registration will be from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m."

MANY ENJOY DANCE AT CO. M. ARMORY

Excellent Crowd Last Night—Hundred Couples Present.

Company M's fund for camp life necessities was further enriched last night by the large attendance which featured the after-drill dancing party, which proved to be one of the most successful dances staged by the soldiers since the idea was first inaugurated. Close to one hundred couples were present. A mixed program of the older and newer steps was played by Roy Carter and W. W.
Menden. Ordinarily the dances close at midnight, but such an enjoyable time was being had throughout last evening that arrangements were made and the dance continued for an hour longer.
The installation of regulation armory equipment makes little inconvenience, only the seats along the west side of the hall being removed to make room for a long line of lockers. The gallery is a little crowded, but as a soldier said last night, "You can't dance up there anyway," it makes little difference.

KIN OF LOCAL MAN COMES 4,500 MILES TO ENLIST

Patriotism and a desire to see real service in France brought Wallace Weirick, a nephew of C. H. Weirick of this city, all the way from Honolulu to Beloit to enlist. Weirick is a graduate of the Beloit high school and is well known in Janesville, where he has visited many times. For the two years he has lived in Hawaii, and while there was a member of the United States military forces. He is one of America's expeditionary forces brought him home 4,500 miles, to enlist.

Young People's Meeting: This is Young People's night at the Salvation Army. The young people have charge of the meeting and a good time presented on Wednesday evening the meeting will be conducted by young people. The public is invited to attend.

Recreation Center For Y. M. C. A. Army Work

Two Hundred of These Buildings Will Be Built This Spring for Social and Religious Use of Troops in Training.

Two hundred frame buildings, each 40 by 120 feet and with capacity for serving 5,000 soldiers, are to be erected by the American Young Men's Christian Association for its army work. The money to be raised in a campaign which begins this week throughout the state of Wisconsin as part of the fund to be secured in the United States. Five trained association secretaries will be on duty at each building. The association will provide clean amusements for the young soldiers and in many ways safeguard their moral and spiritual welfare. To provide the two hundred recreation buildings and equip them with pianos, piano players, barrels of ink, 40,000 pounds of ice a day and many other facilities a national fund of $3,000,000 is to be collected. Wisconsin people are asked to give $100,000 to this fund. The army work is the greatest task the association has ever tackled. It gained its experience in the civil and Spanish-American wars, in the Panama Canal Zone and among the troops on the Mexican border, where the Indiana association was the first to establish a recreation center. Not only will the association conduct its recreation centers at the training camps on a huge scale, but it will follow the American army wherever it goes on guard duty in this country or on the battle fields abroad. Everywhere it will devote its energies to keeping the moral tone of the army on a high level. Arrangements have been made for receiving subscriptions and donations at all banks throughout the state, or they may be made direct to H. F. Lindsay, Milwaukee, treasurer.

MEXICO PERMITS AUTOS TO ESCAPE DUTY CHARGE

Mexico, City, May 23.—Automobiles and other vehicles will be permitted to enter Mexico free of duty according to an order recently issued by the government. This provision will permit farmers to bring in vehicles which are urgently needed. It also is intended to establish automobile communication between many points now cut off from railroad traffic. The state government of Sonora has ordered 300 cars for this purpose.

ONION SELLS FOR $300 AT AUCTION IN LONDON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, May 23.—Lord Saye and Sele, holder of one of the oldest and proudest titles in England, set a record as an auctioneer at a Red Cross sale in Banbury when he induced buyers to bid up an ordinary onion to $300, at which price it was finally knocked down to an impromptu "syndicate" of society men and women. The onion brought the highest price of any article sold that day.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE'S BIRTHDAY FRIDAY; 34 YEARS OLD

WOUNDED NINE TIMES BUT STILL IN ARMS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London May 23.—A direct hit by a heavy shell or Zeppelin bomb may some day finish Brigadier-General Adrian Carton de Wiart but smaller missiles seem unequal to the job.

Wounded nine times during his military career, General de Wiart has become a human vermin. He is pretty badly crippled but the citadel still holds.

The general's latest wound was a shrapnel blow which took a chunk out of one ear. Medical treatment in the field stunted the flow of blood, his head was bandaged and he remained in the field.

In the habit of getting wounded, General de Wiart in the South African war. He was hit twice during that campaign. It was in Samoiland that he received his next wound. This time he lost an eye but continued to serve as captain in the army.

Commanding force in Flanders in the early days of the great war, the general had his left arm shot off. That laid him up for a while but he came back and was wounded next as commander of a Gloucestershire corps at La Boisselle.

Then there followed three more wounds occurring at various points on the western front. General de Wiart is a Belgian, brother of the Belgian foreign minister. But he was educated at an English college and has been in the British army for many years. His friends say he is a calm, quiet man, of cheerful disposition but not apt to laugh over a near-joke. For his conduct in the Samoiland campaign he was made a member of the Distinguished Service Order. He received the Victoria Cross in the present war.

Here is what the official account said when he was awarded the V. C.: "It was owing in a great measure to his dauntless courage and inspiring example that a serious reverse was averted. After three other battalion commanders had become casualties, he controlled their commands and ensured that the ground won was maintained at all costs. He passed unflinchingly through barrage fire of the most intense nature."

BADGER ANNUALS TO U. W. ROOKIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 23.—The students of the university of Wisconsin who are at Fort Sheridan training received a pleasant surprise Tuesday when Vernon Packard, business manager of the Badger, took one hundred copies of the annual to Fort Sheridan and distributed them among the men there. The men were very enthusiastic when they received the books containing the record of college events during the past year.

Efforts were made to have the books ready before the men left but due to a delay on the part of the printer they were unable to have them on hand. The men said that the books will give them plenty of hours of enjoyment during their few evenings at the camp.

Reports from the camp show that the Wisconsin men are not having any severe trouble in drilling. The course in intensive training which they took previous to leaving has aided them greatly in tactics as well as having them in a fit condition to stand the hard work. With the possible exception of a few sore spots the men are in the best of condition and are going into the work with a determination.

Announcement has been made by Major Crain that all those who are in the intensive course at Madison will be allowed to go to Fort Sheridan June 15 and take up the work. Although they will not be granted a commission with the training and will have a much better opportunity of getting a commission later.

FARMS OR TRENCHES? U. MEN SIGN MONDAY

Madison, Wis., May 23.—Complete plans have been formulated by the faculty of the university of Wisconsin for the registration of all students attending the institution. Next Monday afternoon all classes will be dismissed so the young men can enroll with their advisors. At these meetings the student will be asked to make a choice of the form of work he wishes to pursue this summer. It is the idea to place as many of the men as possible in some form of work which will aid the country in

LEVER INTRODUCES FOOD CONTROL BILL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—The revised administration food control bill, providing for the office of administrator, to which President Wilson has announced he will appoint Herbert C. Hoover, was introduced in the house late Tuesday by Representative Lever.

As revised the bill retains the provisions for price fixing, for compelling preferential shipment of foodstuffs, for establishing milling standards, for regulation of the use of grain in making alcoholic liquors, and for preventing hoarding.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN SHAFT TO OHIOANS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Lookout Mountain, Tenn., May 23.—The new monument erected by the state of Ohio commemorating the bravery of her sons who fought in the famous battle that took place here Nov. 24, 1863, was formally dedicated today.

The monument, in the form of a granite column located just below the summit of the mountain, is nearly 125 feet high.

Exercises were in charge of the Lookout Mountain memorial commission of Ohio composed of soldiers of regiments which took part in the engagement. Members of the commission are Samuel H. Bolton, McComb, chairman; Charles W. Wheeler, Rossburg; Charles H. Grosvenor, Athens; Alfred E. May, Oberlin; Moses Hill, Morrow and Benjamin Emery, London.

Governor James M. Cox was the principal speaker at the dedication. He attended with members of his military staff, including Adjutant General George H. Wood. Eleven Ohio infantry regiments and one Ohio battery of light artillery fought in the battle. In the face of almost certain defeat, the Buckeye soldiers made their way up the mountain side and finally were victorious. The names of each organization and the commanders will be inscribed on tablets at the base of the monument.

THE LITTLE THINGS

Studebaker cars are fine cars. The excellence of Studebaker chassis design—the beauty of the body, both in finish and in line—the wonderful power of the motor—the smooth, almost vibrationless operation of the car—these are the BIG things that indicate quality, which makes Studebaker a fine car.

But PERFECTION also is shown in the LITTLE things.

In a high-grade Studebaker FOUR and SIX you find a high-grade Yale Ignition Lock; permanently bright finished metal parts; hand grips on the door; leather-bound carpets in the tonneau; aluminum bound linoleum in the driver's compartment; leather edged top; Blackmore curtain openers; leather-bound robe straps; big pockets on every door.

These are some of the LITTLE things that indicate the perfection not only in BIG things but in detail, which make the Studebaker such a wonderful value for the money.

The Man Without A Country

By EDWARD EVERETT HALE

I have always supposed that Colonel Morgan himself took the proceedings of the court to Washington city and explained them to Mr. Jefferson. Certain it is that the president approved them—certain, that is, if I may believe the men who say they have seen his signature. Before the Nautilus got round from New Orleans to the northern Atlantic coast with the prisoner on board the sentence had been approved, and he was a man without a country.

When I was second officer of the Inupia some thirty years after I saw the original paper of instructions:

Washington (with the date, which must have been late in 1807).
Sir—You will receive from Lt. Neale the person of John Nolan, late a lieutenant in the United States army.

This person on his trial by court martial expressed with the prisoner on board the sentence had been approved, and he was a man without a country.

The court sentenced him to have his

For the present the execution of the order is intrusted by the president to this department.

You will take the prisoner on board your ship and keep him there with such precautions as shall prevent his escape.

You will provide him with such quarters, rations and clothing as would be proper for an officer of his rank if he were a passenger on your vessel on the business of his government.

The gentleman on board will make any arrangements agreeable to themselves regarding his society. He is to be exposed to no indignity of any kind, nor is he ever unnecessarily to be reminded that he is a prisoner.

But under no circumstances is he ever to hear of his country or to see any information regarding it, and you will especially caution all the officers under your command to take care that in the various indulgences which may be granted, this rule, in which his punishment is involved, shall not be broken.

It is the intention of the government that he shall never again see the country which he has dishonored. Before the end of your cruises you will receive orders which will give effect to this intention.

Respect your orders, Sir.

For the Commander of the Navy.

I suppose the Secretary of the Navy has his today as his authority for keeping this man in his custody.

The rule adopted on board the ships on which I have met "The Man Without a Country" was, I think, transmitted from the beginning. No mess liked to have him permanently, because his presence cut off all talk of home or of the prospect of return, of politics or letters, of peace or of war—cut off more than half the talk men like to have at sea. But it was always thought too hard that he should never meet the rest of us, except to touch hats, and we finally sank into one system. He was not permitted to talk with the men unless an officer was by. With officers he had unrestrained intercourse, as far as they and he chose. But he grew shy, though he had favorites. I was one. Then the captain always asked him to dinner on Monday. Every mess in succession took up the invitation in its turn. According to the size of the ship, you had him at your mess more or less often at dinner. His breakfast he ate in his own stateroom—he always had a stateroom—which was where a sentinel or somebody on the watch could see the door. And whatever else he ate or drank he ate or drank alone. Sometimes, when the marines or sailors had any special justification, they were permitted to invite "Plain Buttons," as they called him. They called him "Plain Buttons" because, while he always chose to wear a regulation army uniform, he was not permitted to wear the army button. For the reason that it bore either the initials or the insignia of the country he had dishonored.

I remember soon after I joined the navy. Some one told the system which was adopted from the first about his books and other reading. As he was almost never permitted to go on shore, even though the vessel lay in port for months, his time at the best hung heavily, and everybody was permitted to lend him books if they were not published in America and made no allusion to it. He had almost all the foreign papers that came into the ship sooner or later, only somebody must go over them first and cut out any advertisement or stray paragraph that alluded to America. Phillips told me a story of something which happened at the Cape of Good Hope on Nolan's first voyage, and it is the only thing I ever knew of that voyage. Phillips had borrowed a lot of English books from an officer, which in those days, as in these, was quite a windfall. Among them, as the devil would order, was the "Lays of the Last Minstrel," which they had all of them heard of, but which most of them had never seen. I think it could not have been published long. Well, nobody thought there could be any risk of anything national in that, so Nolan was permitted to join the circle one afternoon when a lot of them sat on deck smoking and reading aloud. Nolan took the book and read to the others, and he read very well, as I know. Nobody in the circle knew a line of the poem, only it was all magic and border chivalry and was 10,000 years ago. Poor Nolan read steadily through the fifth canto, stopped a minute and drank something and then began, without a thought of what was coming:

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead

Who never to himself hath said,

"This is my own, my native land?"

Then they all saw something was to pay, but he expected to get through, I suppose, turned a little pale, but plunged on:

"Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned

As home his footsteps he hath found

From wandering on a foreign strand?

If such there breathe, go, mark him well!"

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Bessie Love never fails to give a good impression in a "close-up," so she is shown in one today. Miss Love seems to be holding on to all the popularity that she won overnight when a Los Angeles school girl joined the forces. Her most recent appearance was in "Cheerful Givers."

MOVIE DON'TS
One of the studios offers the following don'ts for the consideration of the filmmaker:

Don't think that a pleasant smile, nice teeth, pretty hair, straight legs or ability to dance will get you into or out of the limelight. All combined might get you in, but if you lacked certain other qualifications they'd get you out.

Don't think the movies need you. They don't.

Don't think that stars are made overnight. Publicity may smear a girl all over the map, but if she stays on the map she must have star stuff in her.

Don't expect everybody on the "lot" to fall down and worship you when you make your initial appearance. Many come and many go.

The board also and the newcomer means nothing in the lives of the old veterans until he or she makes good. Don't gush over the actors and actresses. They are only human and some of them hardly that.

Don't think the movie game is a success ride. It's a hard road to a juicy success as is every other road to any success.

Don't think the movies are a G. R. Q. game. It used to be, but it isn't any more. It requires money, intelligence and hard work to win in the picture game.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl eighteen years old. I would be considered good looking if it were not for a few freckles and a shiny nose which annoys me very much. Can you give me a simple remedy for them both?

Powder doesn't seem to do any good on my nose and it chaps very easily.

(2) What is a good simple lotion to keep the hands soft and white?

COLD FEET.

(1) A preparation for peckles is made from one-half dram of oxide of zinc, one-fourth dram of sublimed bismuth, one and three-fourths drams of dextrin and one and a half drams of glycerine. Spread the paste on the freckles at night before going to bed.

In the morning remove what remains with a little powdered borax and sweet oil.

Your nose is shiny because your skin has not enough oil. Massage your nose every night with a good cold cream and let a generous portion of the cream stay on all night. Use a little cream before powdering and the powder will stay on and the nose will not be shiny.

(2) A good hand lotion is made from one ounce of glycerine, two ounces of bay rum, twenty drops of carbolic acid and enough perfume to kill the odor of the bay rum.

Have a reliable druggist prepare the lotion. The freckle cream and the hand lotion.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have nobody to take me out to get acquainted. I can't meet anyone suitable for a husband. I have heard that men advertise in papers for wives and send their pictures. Do you think it would be all right to answer if I saw one of the advertisements and took a liking to the picture? Do they advertise because they are lonely or because there aren't any women?

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Some Cases of So-Called "Rheumatism"

Day before yesterday we said some of the things about "rheumatism," comparing the term with "rheumatoid" and its meanings. Today there are unpleasant things to be said of "rheumatism."

A lady tried all the known methods her friends suggested. For the relief of chronic, as she called it, rheumatism in the right knee. There was something peculiar about this particular "rheumatism." There would be days and weeks when it caused no trouble whatever; then suddenly a severe attack of pain and disability, accompanied by swelling and inflammation of the joint, would confine the patient to bed for several days. Finally she consulted a real young, raw inexperienced doctor only recently out of the hospital. "Rheumatism," said the young man. "That's queer. I never saw it before." Talked just like an amateur. But he didn't get that way. No, the young man examined that "rheumatic" joint from several viewpoints. Finally he found something. "Have to operate," he announced.

The lady was indignant at the very idea. After all the great specialists (self-nominated) she had consulted, to have a mere beginner tell her such a thing! However, the young man had a certain degree of eloquence. He went on not only submitted to operation, but permitted the young doctor to do it himself. He removed a smooth, loose body, the size of a melon seed, and the lady has never had any more "rheumatism."

Remember the characteristics of such a case of "rheumatism"—intervals of freedom from trouble, followed by sudden, twinges, perhaps locking of the joint, on some trifling movement, and a few days of inflammation and swelling.

One of the physicians who had assumed that the lady's trouble was "rheumatism," himself developed a swelling of the left foot, and within a few days the soles of both feet became red and swollen and very tender. He took to bed and began a course of what he called "antirheumatic" medicine, whatever that may be. It was aspirin—which kills pain, but does nothing else.

Finally the doctor consented to have a physician. His physician didn't take stock in the "rheumatism" idea, but examined the patient just as though he were trying to find out what was the matter. For one thing there was no elevation of temperature, which tended to exclude any infection trouble. The tenderness moreover was in the soft parts, not in the joints of the feet. Therefore a diagnosis of foot strain was made. The feet were strapped up according to the doctor's method for support, and natural shoes prescribed in place of the pointed, out-turned monstrosities the doctor was wearing, with the result that he was able to get up and go about his practice quite relieved of his "rheumatism."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Sassafras Tea and the Old, Old Story is the drinking of sassafras tea beneficial as a blood purifier or tonic? Or does it in any way benefit a person's health? (G. M. P.)

ANSWER.—It does no harm whatever. But, as I have said many times, I don't know what you mean by purifying the blood excepting by good general hygiene. As for tonic effects, whatever that means, I do not see how a mere flavor can tone anything.

Raw Potatoes.

Is there any objection to children eating raw potatoes? My children crave raw potatoes, and I am a little uncertain whether they are properly allowed. A neighbor tells me that raw potatoes are poisonous. (Mrs. A. W. M.)

ANSWER.—No, the children crave them because they want the natural mineral salts in the potato which are wholly good for children.

Has His Kidneys Mixed a Little.

I think my question is generally answered, but I am a little confused in print with a floating right kidney is there ever danger of it crossing to the left side and causing death or serious trouble such as tuberculosis? Is an operation advisable for floating kidneys?

ANSWER.—No danger of the kidneys getting crossed, and if the right should pay a call to the left, you won't suffer any harm. The question of floating kidneys is one which your family physician must decide for you, because in many instances people are quite unaware that their kidneys or one of them is away from home, and frequently the patients who are aware of it may be relieved without operation.

Household Hints

RECIPES FOR SOUPS.

Scotch Broth.

Three pounds barley, two table-spoons pearl barley, two table-spoons minced onion, two table-spoons minced turnip, two table-spoons minced carrot, two table-spoons minced celery, two table-spoons salt, one teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon minced parsley, three quarts cold water.

Remove the bones and all the fat from the mutton, cut the meat into small pieces, and put it into a stew pan with the water, chopped vegetables, barley, and all the seasoning except the parsley. It will be found convenient to tie the bones in a piece of thin white cloth before adding them to the other ingredients. Bring the soup to a boil, quickly skim it and allow it to simmer for three hours, thickened with the flour and add the chopped parsley.

Dried Fish Chowder.

One-half pound salt, four cups potatoes cut in small pieces, one small onion, chopped, four cups skim milk, four cups dried fish, smoked halibut or other dried fish may be used in this chowder. Pick over and shred the fish, holding it under lukewarm water, and remove the scales. Add the fish to the potatoes and onion, and cook until the potatoes are soft. Add the milk and fish and reheat. Salt, if necessary. It is well to allow the crackers to soak in the milk while the potatoes are being cooked, then remove them, and finally add to the chowder just before serving.

Milk and Cheese Soup.

Three cups milk or part milk and part stock, one and one-half table-spoons flour, one cup grated cheese, salt and paprika.

Thicken the milk with the flour, cooking thoroughly. This is best done in a double boiler, with frequent stirrings. When ready to serve add the cheese and the seasoning. The soup is thickened with one tablespoon of flour mixed with a little water the pea pulp will be prevented from sinking. Dried navy or lima beans, peas (two beans), or other legumes may be used instead of the cowpeas.

Cowpea Soup.

One tablespoon butter or pork fat, one tablespoon finely chopped onion, one stalk celery, finely chopped, one cup dried cowpeas, salt.

Soak the peas eight or ten hours in water enough to cover. Fry the vegetables in the fat, add the peas, in the water in which they were soaked, cook (preferably in a double boiler) until the peas are tender. Put the mixture through a sieve and add water enough to bring to the desired consistency. Reheat. If this soup is thickened with one tablespoon of flour mixed with a little water the pea pulp will be prevented from sinking. Dried navy or lima beans, peas (two beans), or other legumes may be used instead of the cowpeas.

THE TABLE.

Egg and Meat Casserole.—Three hard-boiled eggs, three-fourths cup cracker crumbs, two cups chopped cooked meat, one pint white sauce. Sprinkle bottom of buttered casserole with crumbs, cover with half the eggs, chopped fine. Alternate meat with layers of egg and pour over all the white sauce. Cover with crumbs and bake in medium oven. Fish or chicken may be used in place of meat.

Au Gratin Rice Patties.—Take cold boiled rice, add bread crumbs, salt, pepper and paprika, and mix thoroughly. Beat seven eggs (no whites) and a liberal quantity of cheese cut in small pieces. Have drippings hot in frying pan and put in spoon patties and fry brown on both sides. These are exceptionally fine and tasty, and help in making a hearty meal without potatoes.

Cheese Shortcake.—One scant cup sugar, milk, two cups flour, and one teaspoon baking powder. Bake in two layers. Season with nutmeg. Use any kind of sweetened fruit between layers and on top. Serve with rich milk. Will serve eight people.

The Business of Living

Douglas Can Not Be Calm in the Contemplation of His Mysterious Double.

"Douglas, Mrs. Black paid me a visit this afternoon."

"Heaven!" Douglas held his hands up as if warding off a blow.

"Where you perfectly deluged with information about the whole neighborhood?"

"No; most of her information concerned you, Eleanor."

"What! Holy smoke, what have I done that I should have the time of the intelligence monger?"

"You have joined the Olympic club."

"Eleanor!" Douglas's tone was irritated.

"That is what she assured me, and when I told her you did not belong to it, she looked very compassionate and informed me that some men, naming no names, of course, delighted in doing things without their wives' knowledge."

"Eleanor's eyes were twinkling wickedly as she caught her husband's lowering glance."

"What do you mean?" asked the annoyed husband.

"You have always boasted of a strong sense of humor and now I am the one who sees the fun in this whole situation. I must be," improving or you are deteriorating."

"Perhaps a more lengthy explanation would disclose the real reason for my going to the party," said Douglas. "Cheer up, the worst is yet to come," began Eleanor breezily. "Our good neighbor informed me that she had seen you hobnobbing with the rich and great, and when I insisted that you did not belong, that it must have been someone else, she loftily told me that she had never seen her for five years for nothing. She knew you all right," Douglas groaned. "And really when I think that I could hardly be convinced that my own husband, I could not greatly blame her for her fixed opinion."

Just "Getting By" With It.

When I was looking at a gown in a togethery shop the other day, the head of the department called my clerk aside for a moment.

When she came back she was evidently full of something and it presently bubbled over.

It seems that a customer had just brought in a gown which was half sold, half new, and a half old. The customer was complaining because the sleeves (of Georgette crepe) were wearing out.

She Wanted New Sleeves After Eighteen Months.

"She wants us to put in new sleeves," said the clerk.

"Of course you want," she shrugged her shoulders. "She's quite an important customer. I suppose we will. They're always doing that sort of thing. They know they can get by with it."

The shop in question is one patronized chiefly by women from the best section of the city. What an indictment of the women who have had all the privileges and opportunities in the world!

They Don't Ask Themselves "Is It Fair?"

"They know they can get by with it, and so words they are handicapped by no inhibitions that a sense of honor and fair dealing would impose."

A clerk in a big china store tells me that this same class of women will order expensive punch bowls on approval, keep them for a day or two (evidently for some function), and send them back unwashed!

If she was not willing to trust your honesty, she should not have allowed you to buy the ticket. In the first place, instead of handing you the ten dollar bill, she should have handed you her purse, and you should have placed the change in it. But since she did not do this, politeness demanded that she drop the change into the purse without looking at it.

EVEN WAR WON'T STOP MICHIGAN'S ROAD PLANS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Saginaw, Mich., May 23.—War won't halt Michigan's campaign for better roads. With state appropriations available as usual, plans were laid here today at the annual meeting of the State Good Roads association to continue the program of highway construction and improvement on a systematic basis.

Good road enthusiasts from all sections of the state attended the convention. Officials of the association estimated that $1,500,000 would be spent on good roads in Michigan during 1917.

I can enjoy myself again since Resinol cleared my skin

When my complexion was red, rough and pimply, I was so ashamed that I never had any fun. I imagined that people avoided me—perhaps they did! But the regular use of Resinol Soap—with a little Resinol Ointment just at first—has given me back my clear, healthy skin. I could not be it!

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulitised coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than any of the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulitised coconut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

TESTIMONIALS FOR MEDICINES

Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company Publishes Only Genuine Ones.

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come unsolicited. Before they are used the Company takes great care to inform itself about the writer. Never knowingly has it published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without written consent signed by the writer. The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

Meade went to the safe, a small one, and examined it carefully and fruitlessly. His letter was not there with the other papers, where it should have been if it were in existence. It was not anywhere.

"Father told me he was going to destroy it, but I rather thought he was keeping it to have some fun with me when the bridge was completed," he said at last.

"Yes, sir, that was his intention. In fact, I know he did not destroy it at first. He told me to file it with the plans. He must have destroyed it later. I haven't looked in this compartment for weeks."

"I'll never forget the lie you told to back me up, Shurtliff. I can see you loved him as much as I."

"No one will ever know the truth from me, sir. You saved your father's name and fame."

"I think we had better search the office now. I wouldn't have that paper come to life for the world," said Meade. Shurtliff was the most orderly of men. The care of the old engineer's papers and other arrangements had devolved upon him. The search was soon completed.

"I guess he must have destroyed it," said the young man, "but to be sure I will examine his private papers at home. Good night. You will be going yourself?"

"In a few minutes, sir."

"Come to me in the morning after the autopsy and we will arrange for the funeral," said the younger man as he left the office.

Shurtliff waited until his footsteps died away to the hall. He waited until he heard the clang of the elevator gate. Even then he was not sure. He got up and in his callike way opened the door of the office and peered into the hall. It was empty. He stood in the door waiting, while the night elevator made several trips up and down without pausing at that floor. He sat down at the dead man's desk. From his pocket he drew forth a packet of papers.

There were no legal proceedings, although there were many inquiries at the bridge. The cause of the failure was clear. It was recognized by everyone, whose opinion was worth considering, that the disaster had resulted from a mistake which any engineer could have made. As a matter of fact there was no experience to guide the designers. There never had been such a bridge before. Certain elements of empiricism had to enter into their calculations. They had made the plan after their best judgment and it had failed. They could be blamed, even vilified as they were in the press, but that was the extent of their punishment.

The bitter weight of censure fell entirely upon Bertram Meade. His ruin as an engineer was immediate and absolute. He was the scapegoat. No one had any good to say of him except Rodney, who fought valiantly for his friend and classmate, at least striving to mitigate the censure by pointing out the quick and ready acknowledgment of the error which might have been ascribed to the dead man without fear of contradiction.

An effort was made by competitors and stock speculators to ruin the Martlet Bridge company. By throwing into the gap their private fortunes to the last dollar and by herculean work on the part of their friends, the directors saved the Martlet company, although its losses were tremendous and almost insupportable, not only in money, but in prestige and reputation. Colonel Hingworth came out of the struggle older and grayer than ever. The terrific combat had left him almost broken for a time, and his daughter said that it was not possible even to mention Bertram Meade to him, then.

The funeral of the great engineer had been strictly private. Only his confidantes, men who stood high in scientific circles, certain "people" for whom he had made great and successful designs, a few others whose ties were personal, had been invited to the house for the services. The interment was in the little Connecticut town of Milford, in which the older Meade had been born, and from which he had gone forth as a boy to conquer the world.

"Shurtliff," said the young engineer, after the mound had been heaped up and covered with sods and strewn with flowers and the workmen had gone, "I have left everything I possess in your charge. You have a power of attorney to receive and pay out all moneys; to deposit, invest, and carry on my father's estate. The office is to be closed and the house is to be sold. My will, in which I leave everything to Miss Hingworth, is in your hands. You are empowered to draw from the revenue of the estate your present salary so long as you live. If anything happens to me you will have the will probated and be governed accordingly."

"Mr. Meade," said the old man, and he somehow found himself transferring the affection which he had thought had been buried beneath the sod on that long mound before him, to the younger man. He had loved and served a Meade all his life and he began to see that he could not stop now, nor could he lavish what he had to give merely on a remembrance. "Mr. Meade," he said, "where are you going and what do you intend to do?"

"I don't know where I shall go, or what I shall undertake eventually," said the man. "I'm going to leave everything behind now and try to get a little rest at first."

"And you will keep me advised of your whereabouts?"

"Perhaps—I don't know. One last injunction: you are not to tell anyone the truth."

"God forbid," said Shurtliff, "we have tried to preserve the honor and fame of him we loved who lies here."

"Don't render our perfidy of non-effect."

"I will not, sir. I haven't found that paper. I guess it was destroyed."

"I presume so. And now, good-by. Aren't you coming with me?"

"I want to stay here a little while by myself."

Shurtliff turned and walked away. When he reached the road, down which he must go, he stopped and faced about again. Meade was standing where he had been. The old man took off his hat in reverent farewell. Meade was not left alone. Beyond the hillside where his father had been buried rose a clump of trees. Bushes grew at their feet. A woman—should man be buried without woman's tears?—had stood, concealed there waiting. Helen Hingworth had wept over the deadness, the mournfulness of it all. She had hoped that Meade might say after the other went and now that he was alone she came to him. She laid her hand upon his arm. He turned and looked at her.

"I Want to Stay Here a Little While by Myself."

"I knew that you would be here," he said.

"Did you see me?"

"I felt your presence."

"Listen," said the woman. "You are wrecking your life for your father's fame. A man has a right perhaps to do with his own life what he will, but when he loves a woman and when he has told her so and she has given him her heart, did it ever occur to you that when he wrecks his life he wrecks hers, and has he a right to wreck her life for anyone else?"

"Oh, my God," said Meade, "this is more than I can bear."

"I don't want to force you to do anything you don't want to do and you are not in any mood to discuss these things," she said in quick compassion. "Some day you will come back to me."

He stretched out his hands toward her over the grave.

"I don't know," he cried. "I dare not hope."

"With love like ours," she answered, "all things are possible."

"I can't bind you. You must be free," he said slowly, turning his head.

"You are breaking my heart, but I shall live and fight on for love and you."

"God bless you."

"You are going away?" she asked at last.

"I must break with everything. I must give you your chance of freedom."

"Very well," said the woman. "Now hear me. You can't go so far on this earth or hide yourself away so cunningly but that I can find you and maybe follow you. And I will. Now, I must go. I left my car down the road yonder. Will you go with me?"

The man shook his head and knelt down before her suddenly and caught her skirt in his grasp. His arms swept around her knees. She yielded one hand to the pressure of his lips and laid the other upon his head.

"Go now," he whispered, "for God's sake. If I look at you I must follow."

CHAPTER X.

The New Rodman. There are no more beautiful valleys anywhere than those cut by the waters of primeval floods through the foothills of the great snow-covered Rocky mountains. The erosions and washings of untold centuries have flung out to front of the granite ramparts of succession of lower elevations like the bastions of a fortress. At first scarcely to be distinguished from the main range in height and ruggedness these ravines and escarpments gradually decrease in altitude and size until they turn into a series of more or less disconnected, so-called rounded hills, like outlying earthworks, finally merging themselves by gradual slopes into the distant plains overlooked by the great peaks of the mountains.

The monotony of these pine-clad, wind-swept slopes is broken even in the low hills by out-thrustings of stone, sometimes the hard igneous rock, the granite of the mountains, more frequently the softer red sandstone of a period later, yet ineffably old. These cliffs, buttes, hills and mesas have been weathered into strange and fantastic shapes which diversify the landscape and add charm to the country.

The narrow canyons in which the snow-belt streams take their rise gradually widen as the water follows its tortuous course down the mountains through the subsiding ranges and out among the foothills to the sandy, arid, windy plains beyond. At the entrance of one of the loveliest of these broad and verdant valleys, a short distance above its confluence with a narrower, more rugged ravine through the hills, lay the thriving little town of Coronado.

DELANVAN

Delavan, May 22.—J. J. Phoenix left here last Saturday on an eastern trip, going from here to New York City.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Hadley, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Rice, at 118 North Fourth street, Saturday evening, May 19, was held from the home this afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. W. R. Rice, pastor of the Baptist church, assisted the officiating clergyman, who was from the deceased lady's late home at Utter's Corners. Mrs. Mary Hadley was seventy-seven years of age and was born in New York. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her daughter, Mrs. Rice, one son, and another daughter, Mrs. Wright, who was summoned here from her home in California about a week ago. Dr. Carl B. Rice of this city is a grandson, also, of the deceased, who made her home here for nearly twenty years, since stricken with the fatal disease, diabetes, from which she died. The burial was at Utter's Corners cemetery late this afternoon.

Miss William McSorley writes home from Bisbee, Arizona, that her school, in which she taught the past year, will close the latter part of this week. She plans to return to her home in Delavan, where she will be employed by the local school system again on July 1st.

The memorial services at which the members of the G. A. R. will attend will be held next Sunday morning at the Baptist church with union service in the evening.

Mrs. Ted Weaver and children left Saturday evening for her future home in Stoughton, Mass., where she will be assisted by Mrs. L. A. Webster, who will return this evening.

Joseph Plank was sent to Madison yesterday by the officials of which we were unable to ascertain if possible if a draft measure be required in Delavan, which city has furnished fifty-six recruits so far.

John Keegan, Jr., will go to Milwaukee this evening to join the aviation corps of photographers.

The Buitts and McGill auto hearse drove to Madison on Sunday and returned to Elkhorn on Monday morning. Mr. Mahoney died in that city.

Joseph O'Brien is employed by A. P. Simons on account of the illness from measles of Miss Eva Simons, daughter of the latter, who is being shown in Delavan this afternoon and evening.

Dr. O. R. Rice went to Chicago yesterday to see a ball game which has postponed on account of bad weather. Mr. Lynch was a Milwaukee visitor today.

John Vasey returned home from Killebourn last night. His wife, whose mother passed away there last week, will remain at the home for some time longer.

The funeral of Miss Ella Hartman will be held at the home of Mrs. Doris Leonard, Wednesday morning at nine o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. R. Rice. The body will then be taken by train to Freeport for burial.

Several Delavan men attended the funeral of Michael Mahoney at St. Patrick's church in Elkhorn this morning. Mr. Mahoney, who was a traveling salesman, was stricken with apoplexy last week while at Madison and died there Sunday morning. He leaves a wife and one son, and a daughter, Rev. James Nicholas, a former pastor at St. Patrick's church, Elkhorn, assisted the present pastor, Father Fischer. A number of Knights of Columbus from the Beloit council, of which he was a member, attended the services. Burial took place in the Elkhorn Catholic cemetery.

The Delavan boys of Company C have received a set of uniforms and rifles for temporary use and wore the suits to the Whitewater rifle meet and practice held there last Sunday. Robert Trow of this city made some of the best shots among the boys.

Charles Conter has had his household goods shipped overland to Waterford today, and L. S. Wallace, who has gone to Milwaukee to reside, sent the auto van here from that city for his goods. Both parties despaired of having better weather soon.

HEAVY COATED TONGUE?

(By L. H. Smith, M. D.)

When your tongue is thick, broad, and of a pale, dirty yellow color at the base—perhaps accompanied by a dull, heavy headache—you should heed the warning signal that your circulation is sluggish, that you are bilious and have an inactive liver. Especially is this so if your skin is sallow, and the water highly colored in the morning on arising, showing that it contains uric acid. Sometimes the liver is enlarged, and there is soreness over liver and pain in the right side and under right shoulder. At any time, but by all means once a week, you should take a vegetable cathartic. Obtain at your drug store a vial of Pleasant Pellets made up of the May-apple, also leaves and jalap. This is the well known pellet made up nearly fifty years ago by Dr. Pierce, and which can be had for a quarter of a dollar from any apothecary. Simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Dinner Stories

Nearly ever one of his friends had suffered from the caprices of the critical joker. Happily, the joker had weak points of his own. One of them was a dislike of night air. One morning about two o'clock there came a tremendous thumping at his front door. The joker honed out of bed, opened his front window and leaned out.

"In heaven's name, what is the matter?" he said.

"One of your windows is open," said the man on the sidewalk.

"Which one?" said the joker.

"The one you have stuck your head through," was the reply.

In his younger days Gilhooley used to be a traveling salesman. One time he rode on a train with a man who didn't like the Irish. Presently the train passed a mountain lake and Gilhooley said to his neighbor:

"I wonder what makes that mountain so bare?"

"It's bare," was the reply, "because an Irishman spit on it."

Just then the man who made the offensive remark lifted his hat and showed a head that was absolutely bald.

"I suppose an Irishman spit on your head too," said Gilhooley.

"What do you think of this submarine warfare?"

"Well," replied Broncho Bob, "it

Amazing Power of Bon-Opto To Make Weak Eyes Strong

Doctor Says It Strengthens Eyesight 50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

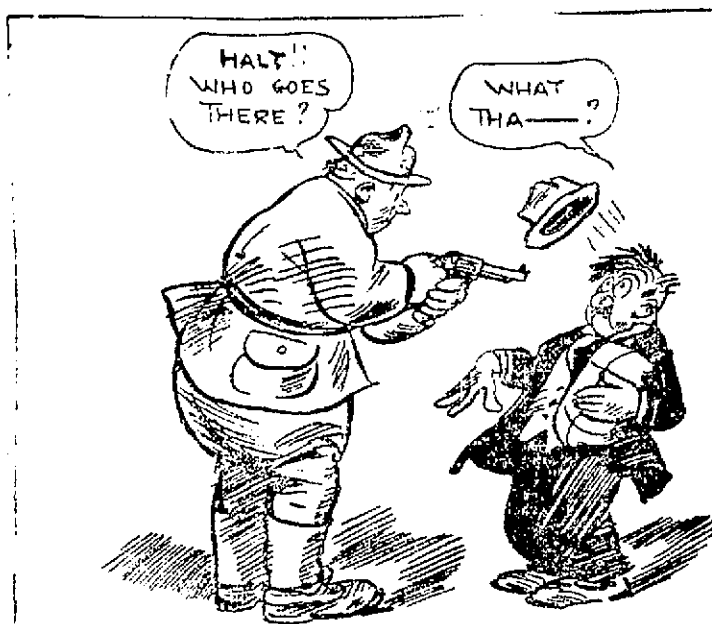

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says he could not read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would burn dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me. A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can read even the print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes, which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the type-writing on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim greenish haze to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a season.

able time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription at home. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: A prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. The constituent ingredients are widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own office on patients who were straining through overwork or mist glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust, wind. It is one Gaffney has insisted all along that Mitchell would put the Cubs in the National league race, close to the top, when the Chicago team whipped the Braves for the second time one day last week. The former Boston magnate was delighted. I came near telegraphing my congratulations to Mitchell, said Gaffney, but I finally decided to wait. A wire at this time might prove a flax, and that is why I didn't send it. Weegham already has complimented Gaffney for handing out a real live tip.

BOWLERS BANQUET ON TUESDAY NIGHT

All Bowlers of City May and Are Urgently Requested to Attend to Boost for Next Season.

Janesville bowlers will close what is without a doubt the most successful bowling season in the history of the sport here, at the Hotel Planters, Tuesday night. A big program is being arranged by those in charge and a large turnout is expected.

The sport has seen a larger following the past season than ever before. Indications are that it will continue to grow in popularity next year, and at the present time additional alleys are being planned to take care of any possible overflow of enthusiasm concerning the pin game.
